About the Speakers

An award winning vocalist, entertainer, cancer survivor and now motivational speaker, Kevin Sharp has seen and done it all. Kevin grew up in Weiser, Idaho in a musical family of seven children. Also a gifted athlete who excelled in several sports, he began experiencing fatigue and unexplained pain entering his second year of high school that was later diagnosed as a rare form of bone cancer (Ewing's Sarcoma) that had spread to his lungs. As a senior in high school, Kevin was told that his chance of survival was slim. Uncertain if he would live six months, Kevin was introduced to the Make A Wish Foundation, which grants wishes to children with life-threatening illnesses. They honored his wish of meeting producer/performer David Foster, whose friendship sustained Kevin through two grueling years of chemotherapy, experimental drugs, and radiation treatments, as well as opening a door for Kevin to pursue his goal to become a successful country artist.

At 38, Lori Benson, an aspiring filmmaker living in downtown Manhattan, was relishing life and motherhood with her one-year-old daughter Talula. Then a single phone call changed her life forever: it was her doctor; the diagnosis was breast cancer; and surgery was imperative. Mixing verité footage, with home videos and family photographs, this 34-minute film, is an intimate autobiographical portrait of Lori's battle with breast cancer. The film offers a glimpse of her life after she received the news - the complicated and often confusing medical choices, the doctors' visits, surgeries, chemotherapy and search for alternative therapies, as well as the support and encouragement she receives from loved ones, and tender moments shared with Talula. Lori

Benson's documentary has won many awarding including: best short documentary at, 2007 Ashland International Film Festival, 2007 Palm Springs International Film Festival, 2007 Berkshires International Film Festival, 2006 Lunafest Traveling Film Program, 2006 Tribeca Film Festival.

Linda Burhansstipanov, MSPH, DrPH, CHES (Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma) has worked in public health since 1971, primarily with Native American issues. She developed and implemented the Native American Cancer Research Program at the National Cancer Institute from 1989-1993. She has 18 years experience as faculty for California State University Long Beach and was promoted to "full professor" in 1988. She is the current Grants Director and former Executive Director of Native American Cancer Research. She currently is the principal investigator and subcontractor for multiple NIH grants. She is actively involved with Native American health and wellness endeavors nationwide and serves on numerous national and local advisory boards and committees to promote research and programmatic efforts to assist Native People in obtaining higher levels of health. Examples of her primary areas of interest are culturally competent cancer prevention and control initiatives, HIV/AIDS prevention and control among Native Peoples, and Native American women's health issues. She has authored several books and has over ninety peer reviewed publications the majority of which focus on the health concerns of Native Peoples. She was among ten individuals honored as a leader in the fight against breast cancer by Avon and the National Association of Breast Cancer Organizations.
